Class History Of '56

The graduating class of 1956 entered as Freshmen with twelve girls and twelve boys. This was a wonderful year for each of us. Getting adjusted to the high-school way of life wasn't easy, however, with Mr. Emerson Deese's help and our eager curiosity, we made a great start to that desired goal. We gained Jay Louis Brooks and to our sorrow lost Gerald Clontz to Vero Beach High School.

Our Sophomore year started off with twenty three ambitious students, Mr. Emerson Deese as sponsor, and our same old home room. We gave up the idea of having a party every night, and got a firm footing on the situations that faced us. We painted the walls, refinished the cabinets and tables, had the floor covered, and made new curtains for the windows. We shall never forget how happy we all were when the task was finished. It also proved to us that we could set our goals and attain them. This year Brooks Mullis, Leroy Haigler, and Carol Lee dropped out of school. Each year was to be met with more responsibilities for each student.

Our Junior year started off with a bang. Mrs. Doris Maness was a sponsor through the summer months, and Mrs. Jack Baucom accepted us for the remainder of the year. We will always be grateful to her for all the extra things she did for us. Many projects were undertaken for money raising. We gave $40.00 on the payment for the lights for the school and $50.00 to the Seniors on their trip to Washington. We made two trips to Cheraw Beach and spent one week-end at Myrtle Beach. Those days will always be cherished. Two of the highlights of the year was presenting our Junior Play and receiving our class rings. Nine of the seventeen members of the Beta Club were selected from our Junior Class. This year we lost Roy Helms to Rock Hill High School and Jay Brooks to Monroe High School. Our year was climaxed with presenting the daisy chain to the Senior Class. These were serious moments for each of us for we were beginning to realize the seats we were to soon fill.

Mr. George Williams came to Fairview our Senior year. Mrs. Jack Baucom was our sponsor, but only for a short while. Mrs. J. L. Austin replaced her. Donald Baucom was our president for the year. Our senior play, "Here Comes Charlie," was presented under the direction of Mrs. John Clontz, the seventh grade teacher. An invitation has been extended to the Junior Class to accompany us to Washington. Many money raising projects are being undertaken. The Donkey Ball Game and High School Party are two we will always remember. The thrill of ordering caps and gowns, invitations, selecting mascots and other things are only a few experiences we have had as seniors.

We are looking forward to our Junior-Senior Banquet, the trip to Washington, and mainly our own graduation; which will mark the close of our twelve years together. They have been good and bad. May we always profit by the good and become stronger by the bad.

As we look back through the past four years we see many things to make our class an outstanding one. Two years a Civitan medal has been awarded, both years coming to our class. We contributed more members to the Beta Club than any other classes the two years we were eligible. Lets not forget to look in the trophy case. Many trophies have been obtained the past four years. Championship as well as Sportsmanship, and many members of our class helped obtain them. The cheerleaders that were always faithful were also members of our class. The past twelve years we seventeen Seniors have played the game of life together, and we hope well. May these years be only stepping stones to the future that lies ahead.

Class Prophecy

It was just at twilight last October when we drifted through the main gate and into the tinsel glitter of the County Fair Grounds--- A tangy autumn twilight with the ferris wheel magically etched against a hazy silver sky and the whole carnival world a-twinkle, strung with jewel-like lights and splashing with brilliant, bold color. Fragrant spices around--- many what you call them? Turkeys! Now is nice man named Don come and tell her what to do. Big car drive up with pretty lady and three little boys in it. They live next door with many turkeys too! Neat, sweet little lady has pretty name--- Marlene.

"That couldn't be anyone except Ann Haiger and her Don. They sound prosperous, don't they? I bet those little boys belong to Marlene Carter and her husband Don Simpson, who live next door. Where's the rest Madame Barbee? Lucille, Dean, and Gwen and Ocie?"

"Your Ocie is across much land. She wear pretty blue uniform and walks straight like a soldier. Many people follow her into big silver flying bird."
"Why, Ocie Mae Griffin, you're an airline stewardess."
"Madame Barbee see little man sitting at front of shining bird. Boy called R. A. He make real good pilot."
"What that's R. A. Kindley. Who thought he would ever be a pilot?"

"Why about Gwen, Madame Barbee, what's she doing?"
"Madame Barbee see tall, dark girl. Must be Gwen. She lives in Monroe, and is in a strange business. She is a seed cleaner."
"My goodness, Gwen, you're at Baucom's, just like you said you would be."
Madame Barbee's globe glimmered and gleamed, and she laughed excitedly.

"Madame Barbee see real cute boy in funny looking suit with rolled up trousers and little white hat. He mops up deck of big ship all time, and he have little black book with much phone numbers in it."
"Oh, Bill Freeman, you've made a perfect sailor."
"But what about Lucille, Madame Barbee?"
"Cute little blond in blue coversalls put much gas in many cars. She proprietor of a big Esso Service Station in Stanfield. She married to man who work with her. And around corner is a hardware store with another classmate there. Sign read Clontz's Hardware Store. Dean works as clerk behind counter."
"We always thought Lucille and Dean would be at Stanfield."

Again Madame Barbee rubs the big crystal ball which has grown dim.
"Hear many children, laughing, and calling for another goal. Big tall man---he talk with five boys. They play funny game. Throw the ball through the basket. They call him Don. He coach at real big school."
"Donald Baucom, you made the grade. Head coach at North Carolina State."
"Madame Barbee see cute little girl at game. She make many pictures of boys. They call her Black. You know this girl? Would like to meet her."

"That's Glenda Black, Madame Barbee. So, she's a photographer. Just imagine that. What about Marjorie and Bird, Madame Barbee? Can you find them for us?"
"Light grows dim, Madame Barbee will try for you." Maybe more silver will help bring the picture in clearer."

"All right---there's more silver for you, Madame Barbee. Tell us more about the picture."
"Hear much music, big stage, bright lights. Pretty girl sit at piano. Music is magnificent. Sign on door says, 'Marjorie Simpson, Concert Pianist.'" She make beautiful music."

"Why, that's wonderful. Her music was always wonderful."
"Zoom----there gobig blue Mercury. Pretty girl and twin boys stop in front of school house. Little boys draw much attention as they get out. People say Bird, but Madame Barbee see no bird. Pretty girl smiles---take hand of little boy and goes to her class. Do you know this girl? Madame Barbee want much to meet her."
"That's Mary Ellen Austin, Madame Barbee. So she has her twin boys, and she's a school teacher too!!!"
"The spell is broken, Madame Barbee can see no more. And sure enough the globe no longer gleamed and glittered. It was opaque and dull, and Madame Barbee sank back exhausted, her eyes closed. The long slender, brown hands were still."

"Thank you, Madame Barbee, thank you for telling us." "There was no answer, so we tiptoed out of the tent. Out of the future, back into the present. We looked at each other wonderingly. True??? Who knows???"
